Traditional classics that connect generations

Included services

In this cozy cooking class, Marietta Sicher - who has spent decades in the restaurant kitchen - shows how to prepare traditional classics that connect generations with just a few ingredients.

Together, we will cook:

- A fine, comforting semolina soup
- Hearty, uncomplicated rice meat that everyone enjoys
- Juicy blueberry cake – based on a tried-and-true family recipe

While the pots and pans simmer away, there is plenty of time for sharing, small kitchen tricks, and stories from the time when cooking and eating together was still the norm.

At the end, we enjoy the self-prepared dishes in a sociable atmosphere – just as was customary in the family in the past.
